

Mayor David Sakrison joined the Drinking Water Board in 2014. His first meeting with the Board was teleconference meeting and his introduction to Board business involved the Woodenshoe Water Company, a small (very small) drinking water system with big (very big) problems. We are certainly glad we did not scare him away!

Mayor Dave brought great experience to the Board and as Mayor of Moab represented a wide range of issues and stakeholder groups. Tourism, environmental issues and population growth as well as business growth to meet the demands of each of these, gave Mayor Dave a unique perspective that showed itself in his insight and comments on various issues that came before the Board during his tenure.
